

IF HE CAN FIGHT FOR OUR COUNTRY, WHY SHOULD HE HAVE TO FIGHT FOR A JOB IN KENTUCKY?

Just over 50 years ago, Kentucky became the civil rights leader in the South when it passed the 1960 Human Rights Act.

In the decades since, we have taken these principles of fairness and opportunity for granted. Many believe these rights are protected and available to every one of us. But this is not the case for gay and transgendered Kentuckians.

If you agree that every person in our state should have access to these rights, you wouldn't be alone:

86% of Kentuckians believe anyone should be allowed to apply for a job without discrimination, regardless of sexual orientation or gender identity.*

Kentucky. It's a state of fairness.
